Third Annual Catdance Film Festival

6pm Saturday March 22

Home of Barry Hanover and Allison Richards

By general acclaim the WMJR is keeping up the Catdance Film Festival tradition through the gracious support of Barry Hanover and Allison Richards, who are hosting once again.

The format will be the same as the last two years. A pot luck dinner at 6pm will start the affair, with Jaguar themed movies to follow—loosely interpreted.

By tradition we'll begin with a screening of the incomparable C'était un rendez-vous, a spell-binding 10 minute high speed tour of Paris viewed from the bumper of a Ferrari 275GTB.

Following will be film(s) selected by audience choice, from:

1) Robbie Coltrane: Incredible Britain: "Robbie Coltrane explores Britain's back roads in this off-beat travel program in when the actor/comedian sets off in his classic Jaguar roadster on a quest to encounter quirky locals and discover little-known rural traditions. Coltrane happens upon a scarecrow convention, takes part in Mytholmroyd's pudding eating contest, meets colorful people with extraordinary talents and

- much more.
- 2) Danger: Diabolik: No loot is safe when criminal mastermind Diabolik (John Phillip Law) sets his sights on stealing it — and that's bad news for harried Inspector Ginko (Michel Piccoli), his police force and a whole army trying to capture the slippery thief. Using his prodigious wit and gadgetry that would make James Bond envious, Diabolik always gets away — with help from his shapely partner (Marisa Mell) — in this stylish caper flick helmed by Mano Brava.
- 3) The Fast and Furious: Frank Webster is a fugitive on the lam after being framed for murder. He's on a mission to clear his name, but when he steals Connie Adair's Jaguar to elude the cops, Frank gets tangled in a romantic web that'll only add to his troubles.

- 4) Watkins Glen: the Street Years 1948-1952: In 1948 Cameron Argetsinger, a young law student and sports car enthusiast decided to stage a European-style road race through Watkins Glen, NY. Now more than 50 years later, racing continues to thrive at Watkins Glen, the site now known worldwide as the birthplace of road racing in America. This is the story of the first five years of racing in Watkins Glen, when cars raced through the streets of the village.

There is always room on the card for other films you'd like to bring and nominate.

Please RSVP by email to Allison via allison.richards@hotmail.com or 435-649-4933 with the number in your party and what you plan to bring to share at the pot luck.

Barry, Allison and Marcel live at 2483 Daybreaker Dr. in Jeremy Ranch, just past Parley's Summit on I-80.

Prince Harry Takes Part in Goodwood Track Day

His Royal Highness Prince Harry made his Goodwood Motor Circuit debut today (Saturday, February 15), as part of a track day run by the Royal Foundation Endeavour Fund.

After being greeted by Lord March, owner of Goodwood Motor Circuit, Prince Harry completed a handful of adrenaline-fueled laps of the historic circuit in a classic Aston Martin DB4, before another high-speed run, this time in a Lamborghini Gallardo.

Following laps in a Jaguar F-Type and an Aston Martin V8 Vantage, he met injured servicemen that have been helped by the Endeavour Fund and visited an exhibition of the Royal Foundation's projects, before paying a visit to the Boulton Flying Academy, based at Goodwood Aerodrome.

Lord March said: "We're delighted to have Prince Harry attend a track day here at the Goodwood Motor Circuit and to support the work of the Royal Foundation Endeavour Fund, which has established some wonderful projects to help injured service personnel. As a former Royal Air Force base, Goodwood has a connection with military service that stretches back 75 years, so it's something that we feel quite a part of."

007 An Alcoholic

By John Fenwick

AM News, Monthly Journal of the Aston Martin Owners Club
February 2014, no. 767, pp. 37-38

I have often thought that James Bond drinks too much alcohol, enough to impair his skill in fights, car chases and seduction. Now a scientific survey has been carried out by three doctors who are consultants at Nottingham University Hospital, reported in the British Medical Journal.

They read all 14 Bond books, taking notes on every drink mentioned, usually vodka martinis. They excluded days when Bond would have been unable to drink because of imprisonment or other such reasons. They found that he drank an average of 92 units a week, which is a little over four times the NHS recommendation that men should drink no more than 21 units per week. [Ed. note: a unit is 10ml; a typical drink contains 1—3 units]

This puts him “in the highest risk group for malignancies, depression, hypertension and cirrhosis. He is also at high risk of suffering sexual dysfunction, which would considerably affect his womanizing”, they conclude. “It works out at about half a bottle of vodka a day, and I don’t think you’d be happy with someone defusing a nuclear bomb who’d just downed a half bottle of spirits”, says Patrick Davies, one of the doctors.

They conclude that Bond was a chronic alcoholic, who would have been expected to die in his mid fifties. His creator, Ian Fleming, died at age 56 of heart disease after a life of alcohol and tobacco excess.
